

The Charlotte County Genealogical Society, Inc. Presents

With
Paula Stuart-Warren

Saturday, February 11, 2012

Since the early 1980s Paula has worked full time in the area of genealogical and historical research, lecturing, consulting, and writing. She has been a Board-certified genealogist since 1988. She is a firm believer in continuing education in genealogy and strives to keep up-to-date by participating in national and local conferences, reading the publications of many genealogical and historical organizations and individuals both off and online.

Paula served two years as a national officer of the Association of Professional Genealogists and served six years as a board member of the Minnesota Genealogical Society. She continues as an active volunteer in genealogical, historical, and professional organizations. Additionally, Paula has served on committees for the National Genealogical Society (NGS), Federation of Genealogical Societies (FGS) conferences, and currently serves on the FGS Board of Directors and Conference Planning Committee.

Paula has written articles for numerous genealogical and historical magazines and authored Minnesota Genealogical Reference Guide. She co-authored the best-selling Your Guide to the Family History Library: How to Access the World's Largest Genealogy Resource. Paula currently edits her own blog Paula's Genealogical Eclectica <www.PaulaStuartWarren.blogspot.com> and the FGS Conference News Blog <www.FGSConferenceblog.org>.

Paula is descended from ancestors representing eight different countries. These ancestors and the cousins resided in many U. S. States (including California, District of Columbia, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin) and in several Canadian provinces.
